Office Action Summary

Applicant has cancelled the "previous" claims and has introduced a new one. Since the originally filed claims were only claims 1 and 2, newly added claim 7 should be renumbered claim 3 (37 CFR 1.126).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

> (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reference U' in view of Reference V' and Reference V", further in view of References V, U, W, X, N and applicant's admission of the prior art for the reasons fully and clearly detailed in the Office action mailed June 11, 2001, paper no. 4.

Claim 3 now recites that the package is a "souffle cup" package. As noted previously, applicant's admission of the prior art discloses he employs one of two industry wide type of condiment container; ie. either a souffle cup or a squeezeable packet. Therefore, the condiment or dip package is conventional. To modify the combination and substitute one conventional package for another conventional package for its art recognized and applicant's intended function would have been unequivocally obvious. Claim 3 also now recites that the condiment is a specific dip, either bean or cheese. Applicant is obviously not the inventor of either type of dip. In any case, not only does the art taken as a whole teach associating a smaller complimentary dip package with a package of tortilla chips (eg. Reference U' - a salsa dip) but it is also well known to employ cheese dip as a complimentary dip for tortilla chips. To modify the combination and substitute one conventional dip for another conventional dip would have been an obvious matter of choice.

All of applicant's urgings filed September 12, 2001, paper no. 5 have been fully and carefully considered but are not found to be convincing. Applicant argues each reference separately as if it were applied alone in a vacuum. The references are not applied alone under 35 U.S.C. 102 anticipation but are combined under 35 U.S.C. 103, obviousness. The fact is, the art taken as a whole teaches applicant is not the first to provide a package comprising a bag of tortilla chips containing a smaller package of dip that is complementary with the chips contained in the chip package; applicant is not the first to employ souffle type cups, applicant is not the first to provide souffle style cups with a dip and applicant is not the first to provide a cheese dip for tortilla chips. Applicant has combined a series of conventional expedients and employed them for their well known and intended function and achieved no new or unexpected result therefore. In summary, it would have been obvious in view of the art taken as a whole to modify Reference U' as further evidenced by References V' and V" and substitute one conventional package structure for another conventional package structure and one conventional dip for another conventional dip.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Any inquiry concerning this communication should be directed to Mr. Weinstein at telephone number (703) 308-0650.
